2015 Mt. Harlan Pinot Noir Jensen Vineyard

POINTS

“The Jensen Vineyard was planted in 1975 and lies on the eastern side of Mt. Harlan. It’s bold and fruit forward, and you can still read the newspaper through it. Black cherry, fall spice, cola and sweet oak spice aromas and flavors ride structured acidity through a finish that’s a little tight currently, but will open wide with a good decant or extended aging. Well done!”

Excellent; highly recommended.

“Concentrated aromas of red cherry liqueur, sagebrush and a hint of toasted oak show on the nose of this bottling, which is from a vintage that harvested less than a half-ton per acre from this vineyard. Sandalwood, chaparral scrub and earthy juniper play along with the cranberry and red plum flavors on the palate.”

Outstanding. A wine of remarkable personality and breed that is well worth seeking out.

“Deceptive in its mid-weight structure, the 2015 Pinot Noir Jensen Vineyard is extremely closed to a degree I don't think I have seen before in this wine. I imagine the 100% whole clusters have something to do with the wine's current state of reticence. Time in the glass helps to some degree, but it is clear the Jensen needs time in bottle to be at its most expressive.”

“Distinctive for the dusty, chalky edge and tart blackberry and wild berry flavors, with a floral accent and a spicy aftertaste. Drink now through 2024.”
